What is Mendeley?

Mendeley is a free reference manager and academic social network that can help you organize your research, collaborate with others online, and discover (both content and contacts) the latest research.

Mendeley is a combination of a desktop application and a website

Mendeley Desktop

Offers you:

Automatic extraction of document details (authors, title, journal etc.) from academic papers into a library database

Efficient management of your papers:

- Live full-text search across all your papers
- Filters by authors, journals or keywords
- Use document collections, notes and tags to organize your knowledge, and export the document details in different citation styles

Mendeley Desktop

Offers you:

- Create and manage citations of books, articles, videos, and more
- Import citations for databases and the library catalogs
- Sharing and synchronisation of your library (or parts of it) with selected colleagues.

Mendeley Web

Offers you:

Detailed statistics of all things interesting:

- You can upload your own publications to your research profiles, then track the evolution of your readership.
  - How often are your papers downloaded?
  - How often are they read? From which academic disciplines and geographic regions do your readers come from?

Additionally, there are detailed statistics for each academic discipline and research topic.

- Who are the up-and-coming authors in your discipline?
- Is the interest in a research topic growing or declining?
- What are the most widely read papers on a specific subject?

Mendeley Web

Offers you:

Store your documents in your account and access them from anywhere.

A research network that allows you to keep track of your colleagues' publications, conference participations, awards etc., and helps you discover people with research interests similar to yours

A recommendation engine for papers that might interest you, but are not yet in your library! Based on what you know already, what
